After a gruelling 7.4 kilometre run in Friday's searing heat, many of the competitors in the Heinekin Yard needed some help to get across the finish line. The 19th annual race from Camp Onondaga to downtown Minden began at 6 p.m. and runners were still coming home past 7 p.m.

Liberals pay tribute to Eakins

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

As Liberals in Victoria-Haliburton were preparing to choose Pat O'Reilly as their candidate for the upcoming election, they took time to pay tribute to the man who served the riding, and the party, for the last 15 years.

After sitting as the local MPP in Queen's Park since 1975, John Eakins announced earlier this summer his intention to retire after the September 6 election.

"To fill the shoes left by John Eakins is an enormous task," association president Bill Somerton told the crowd.

O'Reilly began his speech by honouring Eakins' as "an individual who stood so tall.

"He's a man who served the area well, with fairness and integrity," said O'Reilly. "He's more than just our MPP, he's a friend."

Eakins also received accolades from the two Ontario cabinet ministers who attended the nomination meeting.

Murray Elstone, the minister for Financial Institutions, thanked Eakins for his support and advice while Elstone was a rookie MPP.

"John had already been at Queen's Park a while when I was elected," said Elstone. "It was from members like him that I got good pre-government training."

Three in the running for provincial seat

NDP, Liberals, Conservative quick out of the blocks after Monday's election call Liberal candidate Pat O'Reilly has managed to organize a large number of supporters in recent weeks. He has experience in municipal politics and is currently serving on Ops Township and Victoria County councils. Platform issues include health care, education, economic development and agriculture. He has the advantage of running for a party which is favoured in the polls and has won locally in the last five elections.

Pat O'Reilly

Conservative candidate Ron Jenkins comes from a family with a solid history in local and provincial politics. He serves on Mariposa Township council and was active in previous provincial campaigns. Platform issues include auto insurance, health care, Sunday shopping, and the French Language Services Act. Represents a party which is badly in debt and running third in the polls.

Ron Jenkins

NDP candidate Dennis Drainville is a newcomer to politics in the riding although he's been involved with the party in other areas of Canada. He has built a campaign focusing on the Haliburton Hospital expansion and is backed by a commitment from NDP leader Bob Rae that an NDP government would fund construction. Other platform issues include the environment and provincial taxes. His party is second in the polls.

Health committee to prepare progress report

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The committee studying Haliburton County's long-term health, housing and social service needs is trying to deal with public frustration towards the study.

"We're not keeping the people as informed as we should," committee chairman Maureen Dikun told reporters after last Wednesday's meeting.

In order to try to address this apparent lack of communication, Dikun said the committee will be preparing a progress report to be released before the next meeting on August 21.

This report will recount the activities of the committee from its formation late last year to the present. "It will cover where we are and where we hope to go," said Dikun.

As well, the two newspapers will be able to meet with more of the committee members after the next meeting. The committee meetings are closed to the public and in the past reporters have met only with Dikun and one of the resource people.

On August 21 "any committee members who wish to stay can stay as well," said Dikun. The members will be able to comment on the committee's progress and it will "enlarge the visibility of the after almost 40 years of Conservative representation in Victoria-Haliburton, Elstone said "John Eakins has shown that, against all odds, you can be successful even though it looks very tough."

Hugh O'Neill, the Minister of Culture and Communications, was first elected to Queen's Park along with Eakins in 1975.

When the election is over, O'Neill said Victoria-Haliburton should, "throw one of the biggest parties this province has ever seen for John Eakins."

O'Neill also remembered Eakins' late wife Iris. "I know how hard he worked in 10 years of opposition," he said. "His wife Iris was always there working beside him. She was one of the greatest ladies I've ever seen.

"You've had a great member, a great fellow," said O'Neill. "We're going to miss him."

Eakins addressed the gathering and thanked the members for their support during his 15 years in office.

"Those 15 years were very memorable," he said. "We were able to do a lot of things together."

After the meeting, Eakins was asked how the speeches had affected his humility. "It's no big deal," he quipped. "I paid them to say those things."

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH: The Kinmount Legion Branch 441, donated $3,500 to the Minden Hospital last Wednesday. President Al Jopling, left, and Poppy Fund Chairman John McMahon, right, presented the cheque to Jean Anderson. Jopling said the Legion decided to make the donation when they became aware of the hospital's needs. Anderson said the money will be used for equipment.

Liberals choose O'Reilly for provincial election

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Amid a spectacle of fanfare and hype, the local provincial Liberals have chosen Pat O'Reilly as their candidate.

O'Reilly beat Lindsay resident Jim Flynn for the right to place his name on the ballot for the September 6 election.

Of the 713 votes cast at the nomination meeting last Tuesday night, more than 400 were for O'Reilly. In the weeks leading up to the convention, O'Reilly signed up large numbers of supporters, as many as 500, to ensure his victory over Flynn.

So many people signed up, that the venue had to be changed from a school auditorium to the Armoury in Lindsay.

O'Reilly's organizers enlisted the talents of the Kawartha Cavaliers to perform on the lawn outside the meeting and to escort the candidate to the platform when it came time for his speech.

"I'm convinced our party has the best interests of this area at heart," O'Reilly told the crowd, "and the political will to serve these interests at Queen's Park."

O'Reilly outlined some of the issues he plans to pursue during the campaign.

He said the government has to find "creative solutions" to deal with increased demand on health services and he singled out the proposed 18-bed expansion to the Haliburton Hospital as a specific concern.

"The people of Haliburton did more than their part to raise money," said O'Reilly. "We must get the promised government support."

Another priority is trying to attract new investment to Victoria-Haliburton by promoting the area's attractiveness, he said. "Let's not be bashful when presenting the advantages."

As a candidate, O'Reilly said he will deal with "life issues" such as health care, housing, day care and "respect for life at all levels."

On the issue of waste management, O'Reilly said the government and communities have to work together to find answers. "Solutions have to be found and they have to be worked out with you, the people."

County reform, education and the importance of tourism to the riding are some of the other issues that will have to be dealt with during the course of the campaign, he said.

"All of these issues and all of these concerns make a full agenda," said O'Reilly.

He also paid tribute to retiring Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins, who is stepping down after 15 years at Queen's Park.

"It is important to have the party together and strong to carry on the proud tradition of the Eakins' era," said O'Reilly. "I will be fully available to serve on your behalf and try and get the best results possible."

For his part, Flynn delivered an issue-oriented speech that touched on many of the same concerns expressed by O'Reilly, including tourism, health care, new investment to the area and the environment.

He also raised the issues of national unity, the burden of municipal taxes, employment in the rural areas of the riding and family violence.

It was clear from the outset, however, that Flynn faced a huge challenge in trying to sway the large number of sign-carrying O'Reilly supporters who filled the room.

O'Reilly's supporters were so confident their candidate would win, many left before the ballots were counted to start the victory party at a downtown bar. When O'Reilly finally arrived he was presented with the framed picture from his campaign signs and was toasted with champagne.

When he addressed the audience at the meeting after his victory was officially confirmed, O'Reilly said: "When I saw the turnout tonight, I knew it was going to be a good night."

After thanking Flynn and the party members, O'Reilly said his organization is already in high gear.

"Let's get on the campaign trail," he said. "We have the political will to keep this riding Liberal in a Liberal government."

All three candidates are rookies

In the riding of Victoria-Haliburton, three candidates have been chosen by their parties to run for the position as local MPP.

Dennis Drainville was acclaimed by the New Democratic Party at their nomination meeting held in Haliburton village on July 10.

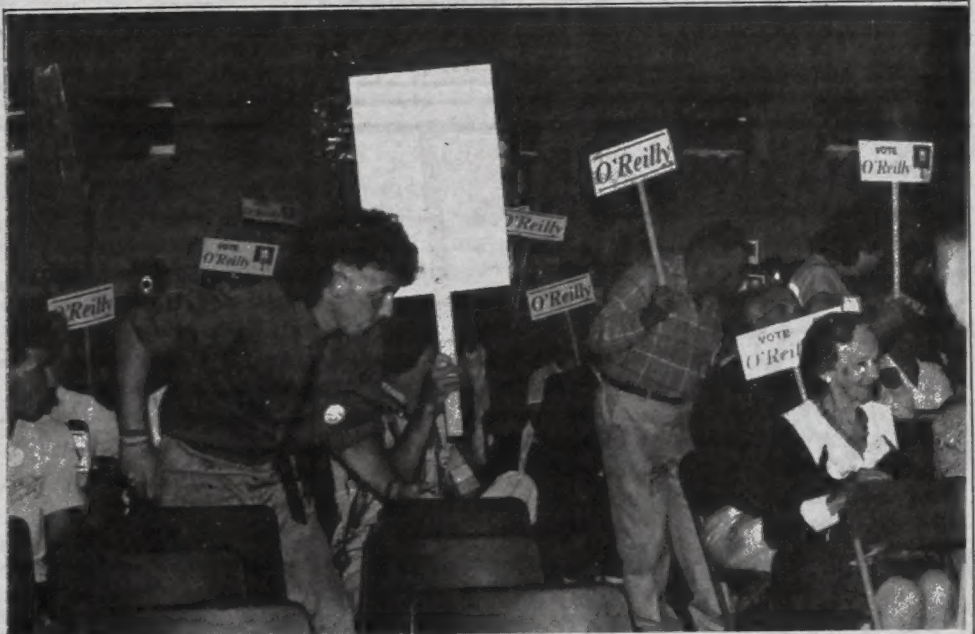

The Progressive Conservatives also had only one person seeking the nomination and officially declared Ron Jenkins as their candidate at a meeting last Wednesday.

The Liberals were the only party with a choice of candidates. The members chose Pat O'Reilly over Jim Flynn last Tuesday.

The Family Coalition party has fielded a candidate in previous elections but has yet to enter the race this time. The deadline for candidates announcing their intention to run in the election is August 23.

This is the first time that any of the three candidates has sought a provincial seat in Victoria-Haliburton. The last election, held in 1987, saw Liberal incumbent John Eakins defeat Conservative Art Ward, NDP Ivan Moore and Family Coalition candidate Dianne Roblin-Lee.

The Victoria-Haliburton Liberals really got into the election spirit when they chose their candidate at last Tuesday's meeting. Pat O'Reilly won the nomination handily.

Jenkins acclaimed by PCs to run in Sept. election

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Mariposa resident Ron Jenkins has been chosen to represent the Conservative party in Victoria-Haliburton in the provincial election.

Jenkins was acclaimed at the party's nomination meeting at I.E. Weldon High School in Lindsay last Wednesday, and says the provincial Conservative's fortunes in Victoria-Haliburton are due for a change.

"It's been a long drought over the last 15 years for the Progressive Conservative party in the Victoria-Haliburton riding," he said.

"It's been a long road and a steep road with a double line saying we can't pass," said Jenkins. "In 1990 it's going to be different. We're on a level highway and the passing lane is clear."

"We're going to bring the riding back to the Progressive Conservative party."

Under the Liberal government of David Peterson, Jenkins says the province has had five years of broken promises. "We can't afford the type of government that has been in power for the last five years."

Jenkins attacked the Liberals on the handling of the proposed 18-bed chronic care facility for the Haliburton Hospital, an issue that has already come to the forefront in the local campaign.

"John Eakins made a commitment in 1987," he said. "After the vote a new Cabinet was sworn in and we were blessed with Elinor Caplan."

As Health Minister, Caplan put the Haliburton Hospital expansion on hold pending the outcome of a study into the county's long-term health care needs.

Following the shutdown of the Martin saw mill in Harcourt and the uncertain future of the 125 laid-off workers, Jenkins said the local forest industry needs to be revamped. He suggested that jobs could be created in the eastern part of Haliburton County through a reforestation program.

Jenkins also questioned the province's current initiative to reform county government, a process the Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins began when he was minister of municipal affairs.

Victoria County recently released a draft report on restructuring which recommends amalgamating the 18 current municipalities into 10 larger ones.

"It's the next step to regional government," said Jenkins. Although the Victoria study was conducted by local county officials, Jenkins said the province of Ontario is using the committee to introduce regional government.

County reform means "fewer people making more decisions," said Jenkins. "It's a plain dictatorship coming from a big city government."

He also poked fun at Peterson's involvement in June's Meech Lake negotiations.

"When it came time to call an election, he was not sure what province to call it in, Quebec, Ontario or Newfoundland," said Jenkins. "He's trying to rule all three."

When speaking to reporters after the meeting, Jenkins said his campaign will not be affected by the low popularity of the federal Conservative government. In the past, he said voters in Victoria-Haliburton have been more concerned with the individual candidates than with the party.

He is also unconcerned with recent polls which place the provincial Conservatives in last place in Ontario. "Polls don't concern me," he said. "It's a great place to start, the only way to go is up."

Jenkins said he plans to take a stand against the policy of official bilingualism in Ontario and opposes the Liberal government's French Language Services Act.

Who are our choices?

Take a good look at the candidates vying for your vote in the upcoming provincial election, because September 6 is not that far away and the decision we are about to make will not be as clear cut as it has in the past.

In another 31 days, voters in Haliburton and Victoria Counties will be going to the polls to select a new Member of Provincial Parliament for this riding. In a way, we will be hiring a person to represent our concerns at Queen's Park, a very important job — one that should not be granted on the basis of personal popularity alone.

Residents of this riding have been fortunate for the past 15 years that our most popular candidate in the provincial elections was also able to represent us with strength and intelligence. Unfortunately, John Eakins is not in the running this time around.

Of the three candidates in the running so far, very little is known about their thoughts on national, provincial or local issues. It is our task over the next month to find out which of these candidates is best qualified for the job.

Eakins once said that the bulk of his work as our MPP was in regard to Haliburton County issues. This is partially due to the fact that the people of this part of the riding push hard for what they want and need. However, it is also due to the fact that some of our needs tend to be disregarded by a city-oriented government.

This is why this riding, and Haliburton County in particular, needs strong representation. We need someone who understands the issues that affect us. Without strong representation from a leader who understands our concerns, the government — regardless of which party holds power — will become even less responsive to our needs.

Thirty one days is not a lot of time to find out who is best suited for this job, but that's all the time we have.

The way we treat animals is inhuman

Heaven goes by favour. If it went by merit, you would stay out and your dog would go in.

Mark Twain

Old Sam Clemens was right, you know. It's a lucky thing we humans wrote the Bible. It gave us a chance to make ourselves look good and to grab the captain's cabin on Spaceship Earth. Ever since we put ourselves in charge of the planet the way we've treated our fellow tenants has been something less than charitable.

When white men first came to this continent, the skies were blackened by migrating passenger pigeons each year. You can't find a single one now. We slaughtered the beaver and decimated the buffalo herds. We obliterated the Plains Grizzly and reduced the once common eastern mountain lion to little more than a ghostly rumour.

Mind you, we haven't always killed our colleagues outright. Sometimes we settled for simple animal humiliation. Tigers pacing in cages, elephants balancing on balls. Bears in clown hats waltzing to Strauss.

And all the while, the animals endured, with scarcely a cheep or a hiss or a bellow of protest. Oh, once in a while a Great White picks off a surfer, a tiger snags a Bengali villager or a Spanish toro outfoxes a matador and pins him to the plaza sand — but tally those paltry victories against, say, the number of Big Macs sold each day.

No contest.

Opposition to proposed group home based on peace of mind and property values

Editor:

Re: Group Home Article - July 23

The reporter who attended the Snowdon Township meeting did not report all the facts that were brought out at that time.

Those facts are as follows:

1. Some of the children who would be in these group homes are on probation. This information comes from the Correctional Patrol in Peterborough. They are not all poor helpless children. I consider someone who is 18 years old an adult.

2. When one group home is allowed to move into an area (and Snowdon Township is considered an easy touch) then others are soon to follow. i.e. - There are several in Peterborough, there are five in one sub-division in Orangeville.

3. Five Real Estate companies in the area all agreed that there would be a property value loss and also it could be hard to find a buyer who would be interested in a home close to a group home.

I suggest the people who make comments about a situation should first get their facts straight (Re: letter - Fight with group home saddening - July 30) or they should mind their own business.

And no, I am not ashamed for trying to protect my family's peace of mind and our property value. Who in their right mind would not do the same?

Value of trees is in the eye of the beholder

Editor:

Re: Gypsies Regroup Article

As a property owner (Little Gull Lake) whose trees in the past three year have seen severe defoliation, I read with interest the article by Carol Moffatt.

We at Little Gull Lake have a severe gypsy moth problem and had our properties sprayed last spring and will participate in next year's program, which I understand will be the last year the government will help fund.

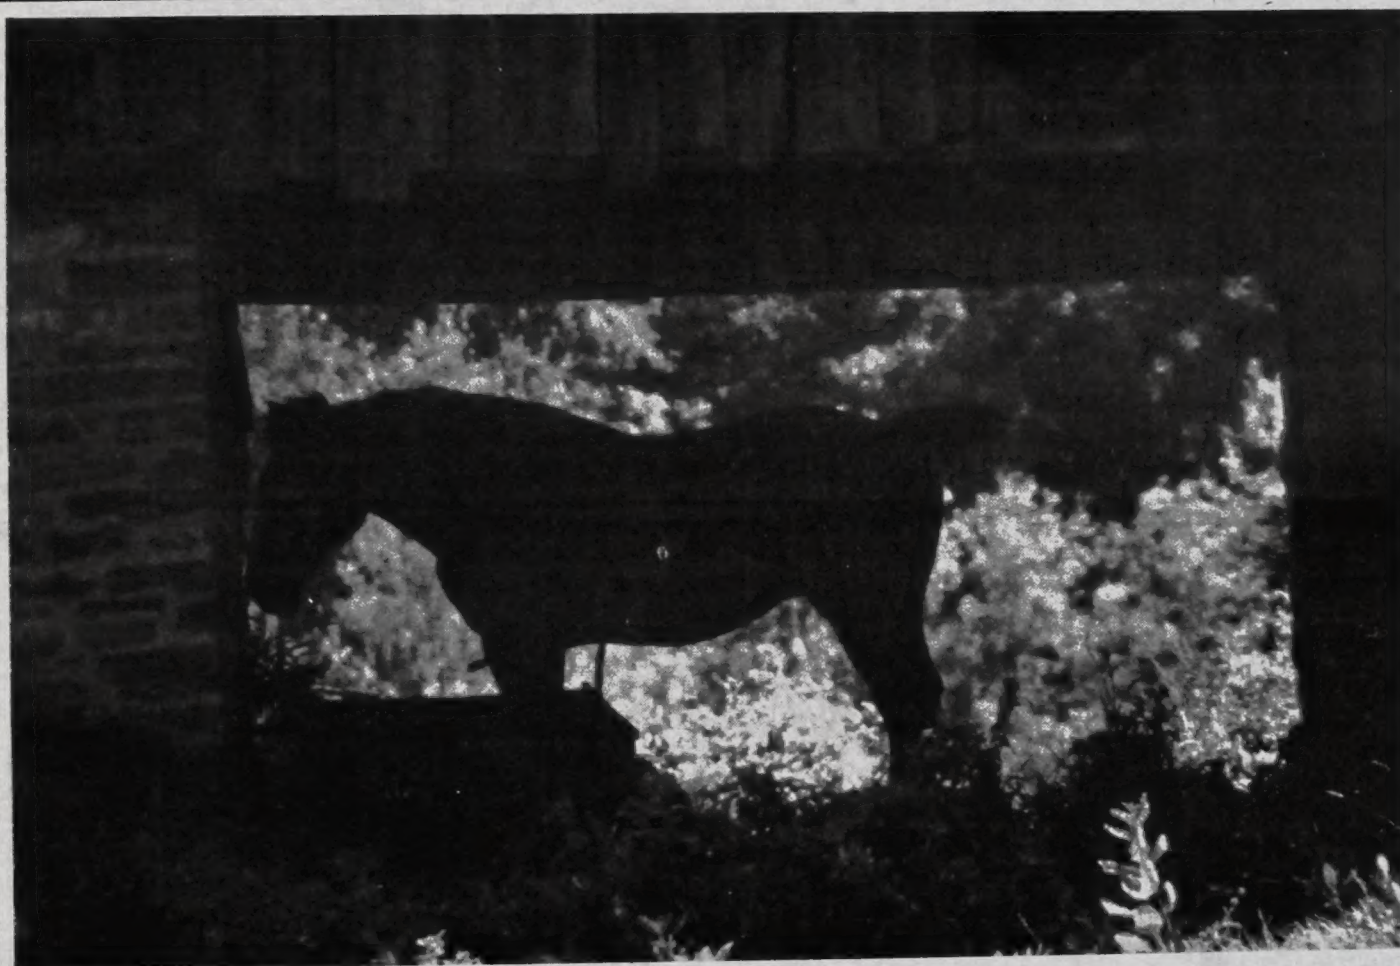

However, the Crown Land adjacent to the lake was not sprayed, because the ministry did not consider the trees of value. Consequently, the trees are bare and it is my opinion (which I feel is every bit as good as the ministry's, according to the article where it is stated that "so little is known about the gypsy moth") that having defoliated for the last three year these trees of no value will indeed die.

Could powers that be answer to whom the trees have no value? The wildlife they support? The oxygen they give? The toxins they absorb? The scenery they provide?

Perhaps they are not important to because the Government cannot find a way to make money on them?

O Canada! Our home and desolate land.

Ever since man began using his oversized brain to compensate for his undersized musculature, it's been a lopsided battle, but folks ... I think the tide may be shifting. Something tells me the Big Referee in the Sky is about to start marking his scorecard in favour of the, um, underdogs.

Evidence? Purely circumstantial, so far. But read these three stories that appeared in the papers recently.

The first tale tells the plight of Troy Brewer, delivery boy for Domino's Pizza in Balch Springs, Texas. Troy's no greenhorn in the pizza delivery game. He's handled drunks, deadbeats and no-shows.

But he draws the line at hold-up amphibians.

Late one Tuesday night, two rough-looking customers cornered Troy on a dark street. "Don't move" growled one as he drew his weapon from under his coat, "or yer gonna git bit." And there Troy was, nose to nose with a snapping turtle. "A big, huge, ugly one!" recalls Troy. "That sucker was gonna bite me!" The turtle-armed men escaped with about $50.

Scary, but not as scary as the story out of Fort Richey, Florida, where an outlaw gang is terrorizing a quiet law-abiding community of peaceful retirees.

A gang of Muscovy ducks.

It's a big gang — at least a hundred members. In the past month alone, six residents have been assaulted. One woman had her dress chewed. Another man fell over a fence and cut his hand trying to escape. "They were mean" says one Fort Richey victim. "They keep after you. They get ugly and want to bite people."

My final animal horror story occurred right here in Canada - in Fairview, Alberta as a matter of fact, where Donald Zenert decided to climb a fence into a deer enclosure to snap close-ups of some white-tailed does.

He apparently didn't notice the white-tailed buck.

Next thing Zenert knew, he was parrying antler thrusts from the infuriated male. And it was no bluff. "He was getting in some pretty good shots with his horns" says Zenert. "I figured the only way to keep him from putting an antler through my heart was to grab him and hang on."

So he did. For nearly two hours. He might still be there if the owner of the farm hadn't rescued him by shooting the buck.

Big deal, you say. Three unconnected stories, you say. Well, maybe. But I've been having nightmares about that Hitchcock movie, The Birds recently.

And there was that owl hooting in the shopping mall.

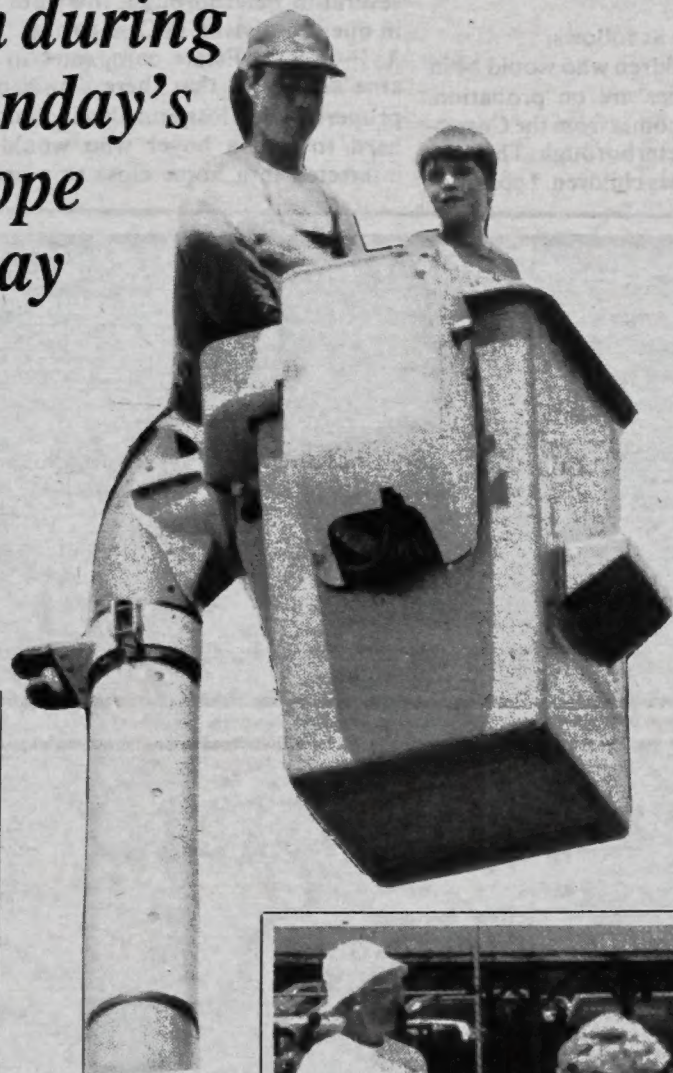

All I can say is, if animals do take over the world, I trust the ants will put in a good word for me. They better, after all the picnics I took them on.

Rock bass take a licking when Horseshoe Lake kids go fishing at annual HLP OA rock bass derby

by Pauline Plooard

Kids around Horseshoe Lake caught about 176 pounds of rock bass during the second annual Horseshoe Lake Property Owners Association Kids Rock Bass Derby held on July 29.

Chad Skelding, 12 years old, (with a little help from his dad) pulled in an incredible 68 pounds (that's about 31 kilograms for you youngsters who've gone to metric masses). Twelve-year-old Jason O'Neill took out 21 pounds. The smallest rock bass, 9.2 cm, turned in by Steve Himmelman, 11 years, won him the prize for the littlest rock bass, smallest by mere millimeters from those of Michael Brown, Scott Banton, and David Winter.

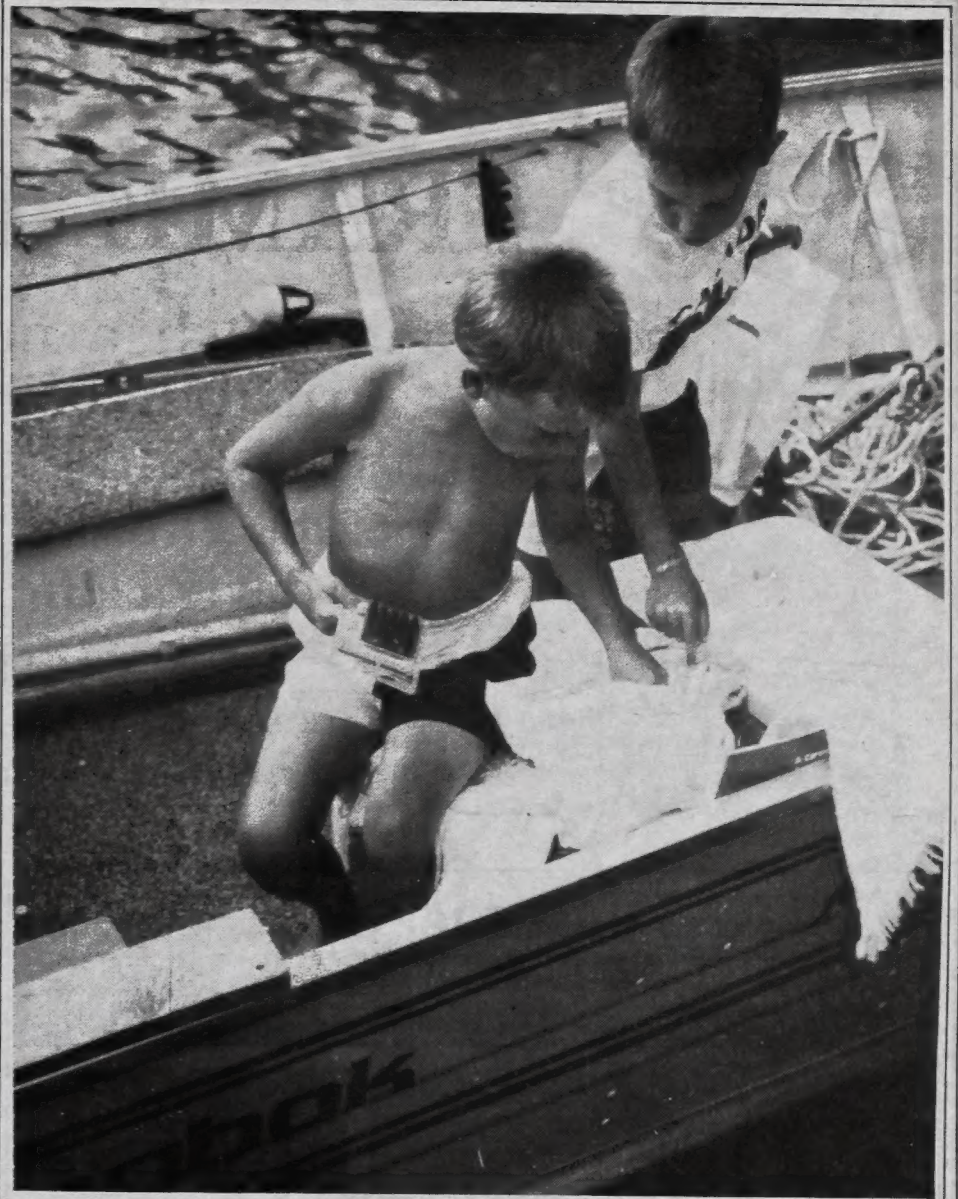

The greatest number of anglers were under 10 years old and they all seemed happy to trade off their catch of the day for ribbons and prizes graciously donated by sponsors.

Michael Brown, Michael Hill and Rich and Andy Kinsmen were the big catchers in the six year and under category. In the seven to 10 year class, Amanda Hill, Lindsey Barker and Kristen Roberts pulled in the top prizes.

Throughout the day, Rocky Crawford, professional bass fisherman and guide, toured the lake in his bass boat encouraging the young anglers. Horseshoe Lake is known for good largemouth and smallmouth bass fishing and removal of voracious rock bass gives the more desirable bass fingerlings a better chance of survival. C.P.R. (catch, photograph, and release) is encouraged for any really large bass as they can then breed more bass. A fine meal of the more plentiful medium sized bass is a better idea.

Weigh-in was held in the afternoon at the Plooard's boathouse down McCracken's Lane. Carol Ward and her cottage guest Cheryl Bruce registered the children while Grant Plooard and Randy Ward weighed all the fish. Vern Gilbert, president of the Association, briefly addressed the assembled parents and congratulated the children on their prowess.

Ooodles of noodles and a sea of sauce

by Carol Moffatt

It took 100 lbs. of meat, 54 cans of tomatoes, 22 large cans of tomato paste, 15 lbs. of green peppers, over 10 lbs. of onions and eight full garlic cloves, but it was worth it.

More than 200 people attended a Spaghetti Dinner on Wednesday put on by Ann Barker Catering on behalf of the Stanhope Firefighters' Jaws for Life Fund. The evening netted the fund another $900.

Patrons paying $10 per person were lined up out the door of the Stanhope Firehall waiting for a table. "It's not just canned sauce thrown on some spaghetti," said Barker, "it's all fresh."

The meal was an all-you-can-eat salad bar, garlic bread and spaghetti affair. A choice of fruit salad or a chocolate eclair rounded out the meals and coffee and tea were provided.

Members of the fire department and their wives waited on tables, cleared dishes, set places and seated diners. The spaghetti was cooked in three large roasting pans and sauce was ladled out of five steaming urns. The dishwasher never stopped running and neither did the firefighters.

"I'm overwhelmed by the response," said Barker. "It's been a lot of work but it's been worthwhile," she said.

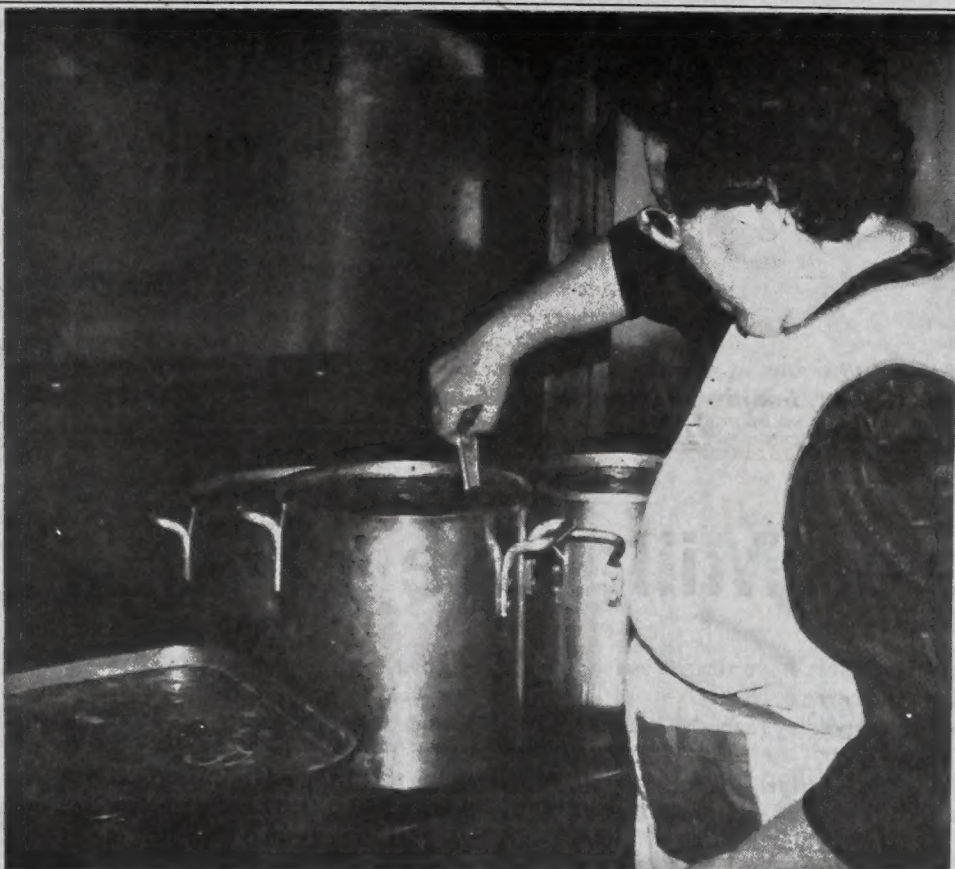

However, 'a lot of work' could be an understatement. The salad bar was made up from 36 heads of lettuce, 25 lbs. of tomatoes, 30 cucumbers, 10 lbs. of red onions, nine stalks of celery, 10 lbs. of green pepper, 20 lbs. of carrots and 10 lbs. of bean sprouts.

There were 146 chocolate eclairs, about $100 worth of fresh fruit—cut up by hand—for the fruit salad and 50 loaves of bread specially baked by Dollo's IGA.

It took three days to make the sauce, four hours to make the fruit salad and two days to prepare the salad and set up the hall. There were seats for 115 people and not one was empty from 6 p.m. until about 7:30 p.m. when things began to slow down.

Bob Pollard, President of the Stanhope Firefighter's Association which is in charge of the fundraising was amazed. "It's fantastic support," he said. The fund stands around $10,000 and needs only another $8,000.

Above, young and old alike enjoyed the huge salad table at last week's Spaghetti Dinner. Ann Barker keeps an eye on the simmering sauce.

The Minden Junior fastball team plays host to Millgrove this Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Heat and humidity took their toll on those who took part in the 19th annual running of the Heinekin Yard Friday in Minden. Cool water was flowing into the mouths of the early finishers almost as fast as it came out their pores. This year's race featured a tremendous number of runners in spite of the heat.

Juniors set sights on Millgrove

The Minden Junior men's fastball team will meet up with Millgrove in the Ontario Rural Softball Association playoffs this Friday.

Minden will play host to Millgrove for the series opener at the new Minden ball diamond at 7:30 p.m. for a nine-inning game.

Minden coach Kevin Smith says it's hard to know how well his team will stand up against the competition. This is the first season the area has been represented by a junior team.

Smith, however, is sure Millgrove will have a fight on their hands in this series.

His players have been practicing twice each week since June and they're ready to play.

Like the Midget team, the local Juniors come from all over the Highlands. Five players come from Minden, four from Haliburton, one is from Irondale and another is from West Guilford.

Playing on this year's team are Jason Stamp, Jaro Cooper, Ron Perrin, Trinneer Alias, Dean Fyfe, Scott Nesbitt, Craig Smith, Brent Flood, Gordie Wood, Jamie Hancock and Drew Mitchell. Cheryl Smith is the team's bat girl.

Minden Derby is top pay day for racers

The Minden Sled Dog Derby Committee has announced that, thanks to the generous support of race sponsor Martin Pet Foods, the 1991 Minden Sled Dog Derby will offer the largest purse in Canada for a limited-class event.

Martin's is providing a cash purse of $25,100 plus $16,000 in additional support for the event for a total of $41,100.

Race Governor Val Lougheed expressed her appreciation of Martin's continuing support for the annual race which has become the world's largest limited-class speed race. "Dealing with Martin's is a real pleasure," she said, "because they are professional and have been truly supportive of our race and of the sport of sled-dog racing in general."

Lougheed is also President of Canadian Federation Sled-dog Sports and was elected Director of the International Federation of Sleddog Sports at their meeting in Vienna earlier this month.

Minden Midgets on track for provincial semi-finals

The Minden Midget fastball team is heading into the semi-finals in the Ontario Rural Softball Association with the second game to be played Saturday in Drumbo.

The midgets were paired with Drumbo in the first game of the series yesterday (Sunday). Results of that game were not available by press time. The third game of this best-of-three series is yet to be scheduled.

Minden coach Kevin Smith says his team has a good shot at winning this series and moving on to the finals. If they make it to the finals they will meet the winner of the series between Copetown and Merlin.

ORSA competition provides provincial playdowns for teams from rural centres whose populations do not exceed 8,500. Last year's midget champ was the team from Merlin. Minden was edged out in the semi-finals last season.

Smith says the boys are geared up for this series after a long summer of hard practice. He hopes to see strong fan support at the home games and notes that players come from throughout the county. Six of the players are from Minden, six from Haliburton, one from Hall's Lake and another from Irondale.

This season's roster includes Sam Little, Pat Casey, John Vuksic, Chris Allaire, Kyle Hewitt, Paul Morissette, Brian Waller, Jay Hughes, Charlie Clarke, Kent Taylor, Shawn Perrin, George Simmons, Ryan Timbers and Kirk Smith.

This is the third year in ORSA play for the Midgets. In their first season, Minden lost both its games by mercy rule. Last year, however, they won their quarter-final series two straight and lost out in the finals in three games.

The midgets are looking for more improvements this season. They have been practicing every Tuesday and Thursday since June and their prospects look good.

Love of nature reflected in art

Artist draws inspiration from Highlands scenery

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

From an interest in art that began with drawing greeting cards for her family, Dzintra Schlotter is now a successful artist specializing in wildlife and nature.

A selection of Schlotter's work is now on display at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden.

Born and raised in Toronto, Schlotter still lives in the city but has a cottage near Carnarvon. Much of the inspiration for her work is drawn from the natural beauty in the Highlands.

She began painting 12 years ago at the urging of her husband and has worked primarily with water colours. Schlotter enjoys using a lot of fine details in her work, and although oil-based paints are better for detailed work, she says she doesn't have the time oils require.

As a mother of two small children, aged four and two, Schlotter says she can't afford to spend the time it takes to set up and clean up oils, not to mention the long periods of uninterrupted painting that are required.

"With water colours, I can paint for a couple of hours while the kids are asleep and then put it away quickly," she said. She still plans to work with oil paints once her children get a little older and in the meantime she has come to appreciate the soft effect produced by water colours.

As well, water colours present a challenge to artists not found with oils. "With oils if you make a mistake you can paint over it. You can't cover up a mistake in watercolours. You want to salvage the painting so you have to be creative and try to incorporate the mistake into the work."

In order to satisfy her love of details, Schlotter also does pencil and ink drawings, a sampling of which are hanging at the gallery as part of the show.

Although all her work is based on nature, Schlotter varies the themes of her paintings. Most notable are her scenic landscapes, her pictures of wildlife and colourful paintings of flowers and flower arrangements.

"I like having variety," she says. "By working on the wildlife and the flowers I can have that variety. It's one medium but different themes."

Schlotter works from photographs to produce her paintings. She said her husband is an avid photographer who takes scenic pictures in both the winter and summer, of the area around their cottage.

For details of her animal paintings, Schlotter says she consults wildlife books in the library and studies photos of the particular animal she is working on.

Many of her paintings are composites of several different photographs, she says, and when using a photo of an animal she studies the details but still has the flexibility to alter the subject's position.

Included in Schlotter's show at the gallery are a number of much smaller water colours, including a beautiful scenic of a sunset over Boshkung Lake.

She says she painted the smaller works because she likes to hang art on every wall of her house and some walls won't take a larger work.

She says she prefers doing paintings of native animals and flowers as opposed to choosing more exotic subjects.

Although she's conscious of what kind of pictures sell and what kind don't, Schlotter says she still paints what she wants.

Buchanan has the beat in Haliburton village

Officer says community-based policing is working as communication with the general public improves

by Carol Moffatt

It isn't high tech cops and robbers, but it's working. Haliburton's community policing project is just two months old and working well.

"I know I've made a difference," OPP constable Ron Buchanan said last week. He's the officer who is based permanently in the OPP building on Haliburton's Maple Street.

Although there have been more reports of crime since the project began, Buchanan feels it's just a recent rush of cleaning things up.

"I get a steady stream of walk-ins," he said. People who know he's around stop in with complaints, questions "about things like boating laws and firearms registration", and some even return stolen property they've found.

Buchanan expected incidents to increase when he started on his beat. It wasn't as though there would suddenly be any more crime, he said, but rather an increase in reports because people would more readily approach him with concerns and complaints if he was always around. It appears he was right.

"I'm getting to know a lot of people on a personal basis and I'm starting to get feedback which I really like," he said. But it wasn't so in the beginning. In the first month Buchanan felt the project was "going nowhere". But as people have gotten used to having the same officer around all the time, the response has gotten better. "We can't work without them," Buchanan said of the public.

Wilful damage is the most common occurrence around town. But that, along with break and enter and vandalism in the parks, has decreased since his patrol began. "It still happens, but the local people are helping a lot," he said.

By choosing his own 60 hours each week, Buchanan doesn't offer criminals a fixed schedule to work around. "It's a question of days or nights. On days the shop owners are happier because I'm visible but our problem is at night when no one's around," said Buchanan. "Is it better to be seen or better to be out there doing my job?" he asked. He's not sure yet, but for now he switches around at random, staggering his night hours to enable him to switch to days and vice versa.

"The public is talking to the extent that there's a list of the same few criminals in the community. I know who they are," said Buchanan. Three or four people are in jail now and "a couple are on their way," he said.

Another concern of the project was dealing with what appeared to be a degenerating relationship between youth and police in the area. Buchanan says mending that gap is still one of his main objectives, but realizing the small list of repeat offenders in the community has made him aware of "the number of good kids" there are around.

Buchanan said one of the best results of the project is the continuing circle of help he receives from fellow officers and the community. "The other (officers) will drop in and check out what's going on. When I go off shift they know exactly what and who they're looking for," he said.

Buchanan has dealt with a variety of problems in and around town such as stolen property, trespassing, a lost person, a suicide attempt and lots of general inquiries. That's in addition to the usual break and enter, theft, vandalism, noise, accidents and so on.

He even found a job for a "troublesome kid" whose parents asked Buchanan for help with their 14-year-old who was hanging around and getting into trouble. "I called up a friend of mine and asked him if he could find a job for this kid and he did . . . The kid's doing well and really enjoying what he's doing," said Buchanan.

The new OPP communication system has been another great asset, said Buchanan. There is no radio in the building on Maple St., but there isn't the need for one. Buchanan wears his radio at all times and can be contacted anywhere. He can also get help from wherever he is.

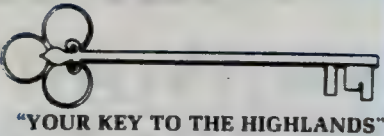

Last Sunday Buchanan was walking through Head Lake Park when he heard a child "whimpering". A boy had gotten his leg caught in his bicycle and had severely cut his ankle. He couldn't walk

Constable Ron Buchanan is settling in as the 'cop on the beat' in Haliburton and says he quite likes it. He deals with a wide variety of problems and feels the community policing has made a big difference in the streets and parks of Haliburton.

Committee opens up

committee members" a majority of whom are from Haliburton County, said Dikun.

Dawn Berry Merriam, the Assistant Executive Director of the District Health Unit, said some of the frustration stems from the amount of time the study has taken.

"I'm sure to the general public it's taking a long time," she said. "But with a study like this it takes a good deal of time to collect the data."

The committee should soon be in a position to begin start releasing the results of the study.

At Wednesday's meeting the committee accepted draft copies of three of the chapters for the Direction Plan of Haliburton County's long-term health, housing and social service needs.

Each of the chapters needs some clarification, but should be ready for release to the public by Aug. 21.

By then a draft report of the bed accommodation survey should be prepared. This survey involved a one-day census of hospital and nursing home beds in the county and the waiting lists of people needing admission to health care facilities.

The survey also looked at the number of people from Haliburton County who are occupying beds in Muskoka, Hastings, Victoria and Peterborough Counties.

Berry Merriam said the committee is not in a position to set a firm deadline for completion of the study. "We don't want to say Sept. 15 if we're not going to be able to deliver," she said. "We don't want to give an unrealistic deadline."

Dikun said even some of the committee members are feeling frustrated at the length of time involved to finalize the directional plan. "There's a lot of work to do," she said. "But we said from the start we want to do this well."

Wanakita receives tourism grant

The Ontario Ministry of Tourism and Recreation has awarded a $335,000 Community Recreation Capital grant to Haliburton.

Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins made the announcement on behalf of Ontario Minister of Tourism and Recreation Ken Black.

"Residents in Haliburton will share more opportunities for recreational activities," Black said. "Safe accessible facilities will allow all Ontarians to pursue a more enjoyable, healthier lifestyle."

"As communities grow and change, so do their recreation needs," Eakins said. "This recreation capital grant will ensure that new and existing facilities are available to meet the changing needs of the entire community."

Camp Wanakita will use the funds to renovate and winterize the dining hall and kitchen facilities and to build year-round wash-room facilities.

Flood relief is approved

John Eakins, MPP Victoria-Haliburton has announced $30,000 is supplementary funds for the Township of Dysart et al. on behalf of Ontario Transportation Minister Bill Wrye.

This grant represents emergency funding from the province to the Township of Dysart to offset the costs of flood repairs due to the beaver dam failure in Hali-burton Village.

"I am delighted that the province was able to respond quickly by making available emergency funds to pay the repair bills caused by the flood," Eakins said.

Callow represents Canada in world competition

Scott Callow

Scott Callow of Huntsville, grandson of Marjorie Coulter, has received an Ontario Championship Certificate for wheel chair rugby from the Province of Ontario.

Callow left on July 25 for London England to play for Canada in the 1990 World Stoke Mandeville Wheel Chair Games. Sixty five athletes are travelling from Canada to take part in these games.

Norland residents take up the fight with Canada Post

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Canada Post has a fight on its hands. Norland residents have banded together to oppose the Crown corporation's decision to close the community post office within three months.

At a public meeting held at the community centre last Wednesday night, about 70 local residents voted unanimously to begin a campaign to oppose the closure.

The fight is being led by Norland resident Dianne Austin who organized last Wednesday's meeting.

"In the best-case scenario we'll get them to change their minds," Austin said in an interview on Friday. "But I don't know if that's likely."

The controversy began last month when Canada Post sent letters to those customers served by the Norland post office to inform them of the intention to close the facility.

After the closure Canada Post intends to have mail sorting and rural routes operated through the Coboconk post office and hopes to have a Norland business open a retail postal outlet to assume counter services.

Austin said the community has already started to take action against the decision. A letter writing campaign to Victoria-Haliburton MP Bill Scott and Prime Minister Brian Mulroney is underway and petitions are now in circulation.

Representatives of Canada Post have called a public meeting for August 9 at 7 p.m. and Austin said she is trying to organize a large turn-out from the community.

She has been in contact with Rural Dignity of Canada and the Canadian Postmasters and Assistants Association, two organization actively opposing rural post office closures.

Although it seems Canada Post has already made up its mind about the Norland post office, Austin said it's important for the community to oppose the decision.

"The whole problem is not just with the Norland post office but with all rural post offices," she said. "We'd better stand up and start fighting. We're part of a bigger fight. This effects all of rural Canada."

Some communities have been able to successfully challenge the closures of their post offices, but Austin said many of these areas had to resort to taking "a real radical position." She said it's too early to tell how far the people in Norland will be willing to go to oppose the move.

In some areas businesses have gotten together and refused to open a retail postal outlet in an effort to force Canada Post into maintaining the post office.

But Austin says the indication seems to Convenience means much to seniors

be that if no retail postal outlet is found, Canada Post will make customers go to Coboconk for counter service. If the corporation is willing to make people in other parts of the country travel 35 kilometres for mail service, "for us to go eight kilometres means nothing to them," said Austin. "But it means a lot to seniors or people who don't have access to a car."

Austin has placed a half-page ad in one of the Lindsay newspapers to try and get people from the rest of the county involved in the fight.

One of the people who addressed the meeting last Wednesday night was Lloyd Johnson, who served as assistant postmaster in Minden and postmaster in Haliburton before his retirement.

Johnson, a past national president of the postmasters' association, encouraged the residents of Norland to resist Canada Post's decision and told them of the corporation's five-year plan to close all rural post offices in Canada.

Fighting different levels of government is nothing new for Austin. For the past several years she has been heavily involved in opposing the Victoria Board of Education's decision to close five schools in the northern part of the county, including the one in Norland.

"Several people approached me and asked me to be the spokesperson," she said. "I guess I was a natural person to come to, I have experience, I've dealt with the press and I know how to organize."

Austin says the fight with Canada Post is similar to the northern schools issue.

"I'm appalled," she said. "It's another situation where the infrastructure of the community is being eroded by different levels of government without consultation."

"It seems the decisions are usually being made by government officials who have no idea what it's like to live in a rural area."

Variety of issues covered at Hawk/Hall's meeting

Property owners learn about shorelines, official plans, water levels and waste management

by Susan Wilson

It was yet another sunny Sunday morning in late July as the members of the Hawk/Hall's Lake Property Owners' Association gathered under the trees at Camp Kawabi for their annual meeting. Guest speakers included Wayne Wilson, Fish and Wildlife Specialist with the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) at the Frost Centre, Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis, Deputy Reeve Ann Barker, and developer Lyle Storey.

On the crowded agenda were shoreline habitat, boating regulations, waste disposal and management, emergency services, water quality, zebra mussels, irresponsible camping, a proposed development on the Kennisis River, and (as ever) water levels. As out-going president Bill Brown noted, the old issues never seem to get resolved and new ones keep coming along to join the list.

Brown began his annual report by recounting his year's adventures in the world of water levels. The association's request for support of their proposal for a seven-foot floor on the annual draw-down was turned down by county council. But his initiation into the subject led Brown to instigate the formation of the Trent-Severn Reservoir Lakes Council which was accomplished last April.

"You begin to wonder what you have to do to unstuck things," he told the members. "It's certainly in the county's best interests to be actively involved in water management because that's where the dollars are. But I realized that we are not going to win on a lake-by-lake basis and that we needed an alliance of associations."

Brown also described a new alliance of the four lake associations within Stanhope which have formed the Stanhope Lakes Council. Their goal is to have input into the township's emerging official plan. "We would also like to see a uniform approach to boating regulations, preferably on a county-wide basis, but at least for this township," Brown said.

Wayne Wilson was given the floor to discuss the importance of keeping shorelines natural. "Some people want to bring the city with them when they come up here," he pointed out, "with lawns right down to the lake. But the most productive shoreline is a natural shoreline. The trick is to develop a balance between the requirements of nature and the genuine needs of people on the lakes."

Wilson then distributed a brochure outlining the 'Ten Commandments' of managing the shoreline and discussed each of the points. He reminded the audience that a permit must be obtained from the MNR before any work is done at the shoreline.

He also urged people—particularly avid anglers—to become involved in partnership programs run by the ministry. "Fifteen or twenty keen anglers on a lake can provide us with almost the same information as a government program costing $10,000," he said.

In response to a question, Wilson admitted that lakes, such as the Hawk Lakes, with dramatic drops in water levels have less productive fisheries than lakes that do not suffer such drawdowns. "However," he noted, "the fish throughout the system have been adapting to this problem for at least 75 years."

Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis asked for the association's support of council in its development of an official plan, in its effort to retain its identity under county restructuring, and in the county's waste management plan—without going into details on any of these topics.

On a lighter note, he invited everyone to join in next summer's celebration of Stanhope's 125th anniversary. "We'll be celebrating on Saturday, August 3rd, 1991, with the opening of our new municipal building which has been financed without raising taxes," he said.

Ann Barker reminded members that they now need to have their blue cards to leave garbage at the dumps. The cards can be used by any member of the family. "We're very pleased with the co-operation of all residents in this new scheme," she said. "There have only been two instances of people leaving garbage at the gate. But our staff are good detectives and they traced the culprits through envelopes in the garbage. We got them!"

She also reported, to general murmurs of approval, that the Hall's Lake dump will remain open. "We have to purchase another two or three acres," Barker said, "which will give us another 20 years for that dump. And if everybody will compost and recycle, it will last even longer."

One member of the audience pointed out that there is no recycling at the Stanhope dumps. Barker replied that they had been unable to find a place to put the container and had therefore decided against it. "However," she said, "when the county takes over waste management in three or four years, it will definitely include recycling." The questioner then suggested that, for the time being, people going home via Highway 118 could take recyclables to the roadside dumpster in Bracebridge.

Under the rubric of 'Other Business', it was reported that the water quality in all three lakes continues to be excellent, the MNR is concerned about the heavy ice fishing on Hall's Lake and is monitoring the situation, the Frost Centre is asking people to report sightings of red-shouldered hawks, and Fred Gardner was thanked for having the dangerous boulder near the bridge at the Big Hawk Landing removed. Fishing trophies were handed out to Fred Welbourn of Little Hawk Lake and to Sally Heden and Steve Dennis of Big Hawk.

Executive member Rob Hartry reported that the two speed-limit signs put up last summer at the narrows had worked well "to everyone's surprise and pleasure". They have been put up again this year with the same happy results.

Hartry also spoke of irresponsible campers at various spots on the lakes. He has talked to the ministry in Dorset who have agreed to make a visit and assess the situation. If necessary, they will post signs prohibiting overnight camping. Then they can take reported individuals to court. "It's not the responsible campers we're concerned about," Hartry said, "just the irresponsible ones."

The last guest speaker of the day was Lyle Storey, a developer from Huntsville, who is involved with a residential development on the Kennisis River. "We have 130 acres," he said, "which we are subdividing into 40 estate-type lots. Four of them will be put on the market each year. The houses will be set well back from the water." He invited those present to view the model of the development he had set up and assured questioners that the association was on the list of people put on notice about the development by the Ministry of Housing.

Bill Brown used the opportunity offered by Storey's presentation to underline the importance of having input into the township's official plan. "Change is on the way," he said. "The lazy days of the past are gone. We have to be active and participate in the changes."

The meeting also approved the executive for 1990/91: Past President, Bill Brown; President, Bill Jamieson; Vice President, Rob Hartry; David Bateson, Hawk Lakes; Myrna McCarthy, Hall's Lake.

The incoming president, Bill Jamieson, included in his remarks a warm appreciation for Bill Brown's work in his year as president, a sentiment that was met with a spontaneous and enthusiastic round of applause.

Celebrate the sunset years by heading off into the sunset

by Morris Duff

You've turned 60, or more. You're now a senior, far too old to traipse off to Europe, unless you hire a babysitter, such as a guided tour. Right? Wrong. Emphatically wrong.

I know because I've just returned from five weeks in Britain with no other babysitter than my wife Shirley. I'm well into my 60's and she's there too.

We travelled from Land's End to well up into the Highlands on a trip that lasted five weeks. We followed our own itinerary and we did it economically.

First trick was to travel light. Everything I needed was in one large, but far from full, pack on my back. Everything Shirley needed was in a couple of bags lashed onto a pair of wheels, plus a small knapsack.

We had to exert discipline when tempted to buy souvenirs. In Dorchester, our visit coincided with writer Thomas Hardy's 150th birthday. The local brewer brought out a Thomas Hardy beer. What a great literary gift a six pack would make. But, too heavy. A set of Thomas Hardy bar towels and a pocket book of "Wessex Tales" were substituted. Less novel, but they will last longer and they weighed less.

One mistake Shirley made was buying a large poster in Penzance. It wouldn't fit in the luggage so was carried separately, until we forgot it when getting off the train in Carlisle.

If you decide to buy wheels, buy quality ones. The cheap set we brought from Canada fell apart being pulled down Sydenham Hill in London on the way to our first train station. The heavy-duty expensive ones ($25), bought later the same day in Dorchester, survived the hills of Cornwall, the dales of Yorkshire and the Isle of Mull.

Those wheels are being pulled around Devon now by my daughter and I'm sure they'll still be strong for our next trip.

Whether you're going to the U.K. or continental Europe, buy a rail pass, unless you're one of those people who just must rent a car. In a pub in Mousehole, a young American couple at the next table complained that they had been driving all day and hadn't seen anything. Hedges blocked all the views and the traffic was so heavy they couldn't figure out where to stop.

From a train window, the hedges are no problem. And, if you're willing to walk, you can stop and roam wherever you like.

Our rail passes, which let us travel any 15 days in a 30 day period, cost $449. In actual fact, so few conductors check the passes that they can be used for far more than 15.

Double check any information from a travel agent about rail passes. Our agent insisted that the 30 days had to fall in a calendar month. Not true. Call or visit the British Rail Office in Toronto for the facts.

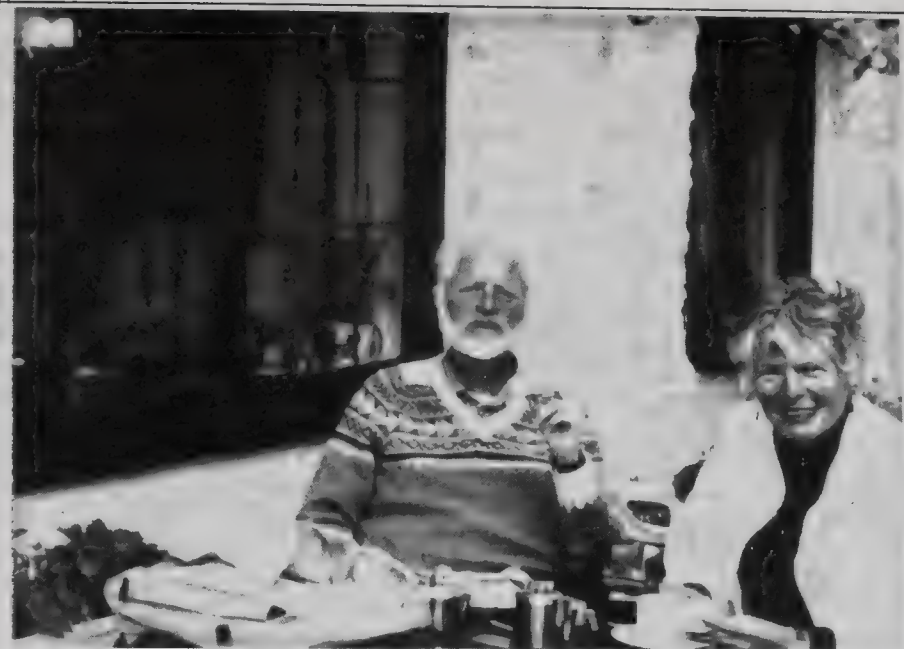

The worst advice we ever took from a travel agent was three years ago when she convinced us not to buy Euro Rail passes. She didn't know they could be used on Rhine River boats, Channel ferries and many buses. Not having them caused frustration when crossing borders. We had to line up to find the rail fare, line up again to change enough money, and then line up yet again to buy the tickets.

True, British Rail passes cannot be used on ferries, buses or even trains within London. However, they are convenient and they do make life easier. And, most important, the railroads of Europe, including Britain, are not like Via. They run regularly, usually on time, and they provide service.

When moving about, we stayed at bed and breakfasts. Costs ranged from 10 pounds each night in Oban, Scotland, to 18 pounds each in Dorchester. Accommodation is easy to find because of the tourist bureaus. Usually located within a couple blocks of the railway station, their pleasant staff phone around until they find a room. I've never been steered to a poor place.

Breakfasts are filling: sausage, eggs, bacon, ham, cereal, fruit salad, and in Edinburgh, haggis. One needs a full stomach before setting out on a full day of travel. Also, I enjoy the conversation with other travellers over breakfast.

In addition, we rented cottages, for a week in Cornwall and another in Scotland. Lists of cottages can be obtained from the British Tourist Office in Toronto and from many travel agents.

Before starting a serious trip, get in shape. We walked approximately three miles a day. Like us, you'll then have no trouble getting from a B and B to the train or bus station.

Also, you'll be able to open other horizons by exploring paths and little used roads, which criss cross Britain in such numbers that the traveller couldn't hope to walk them all in a single life.

Such preparation for travel offers a bonus. It's healthy, especially for the heart. Those of us who do it daily will live forever, almost.

and was just sitting in the grass beside his bike.

Buchanan called an ambulance from where he sat with the child and accompanied him to the hospital. Without the radio system he would have had to leave the child and go back to his cruiser to put the call in. "It's a great help," said Buchanan.

There were initial concerns about a single officer patrolling the town alone at night but the new system takes care of any potential problems. A 'panic button' on the radio "sets off all the bells and whistles in Peterborough dispatch," said Buchanan, sending backup officers to the scene in minutes. "I'm covered," he said.

A community-police liason group is also in the works. A committee made up of a representative from different areas of the community will be established to voice concerns to Buchanan. "People have volunteered for the committee. We're going to plan where and when I'm needed and how the community can become aware of trouble and how to deal with it," Buchanan said.

A student has been chosen to be the high school representative to the committee. Buchanan said arrangements are being made to send the student to Brampton for a week to sit in on police academy classes in order for him to have a better understanding of police work.

"I'm starting to like it," said Buchanan. "I think it's the right idea and by taking it slowly, if everyone gets together, we can make this a model community."

Family ties are written in stone

by Carol Moffatt

Lurking in graveyards and crouching over tombstones isn't everyone's idea of a good time but there's a bunch of people in town who do it.

The Haliburton Highland's Genealogical Group spends a lot of time in local cemeteries and they think it's worthwhile. By recording the information on headstones and sending it all to the National Archives in Ottawa and the Ontario Genealogical Society, they are helping to make it easier for people like themselves to research their family trees.

"There are 27 cemeteries (in Haliburton) and eight are done. We hope to get Minden finished this year," said Cec Rowe, the founding member of the group. The OGS hopes to have all of Ontario recorded by 1991.

The process is simple but a little time consuming. A cemetery is mapped out and divided into sections. All stones are then assigned a code number according to their sections (A1, A2, A3, etc.). All the information on each stone is copied down word for word, line by line. "You have to do it exactly. Sometimes a name is spelled wrong and you know it's spelled wrong but you have to copy it exactly," said Rowe.

A booklet is created with an alphabetical list of the people buried in the cemetery, with corresponding pages giving the details of the wording on the stone. The booklets are sent to the National Archives and the OGS where anyone researching a family tree can look up a relative's headstone for birth and death information.

Rowe also intends to have the records kept in local libraries for local people to research any time they want. The importance of detailing all stones in all cemeteries cannot be overlooked. To miss just one or to copy a number incorrectly can be the single stumbling block in an entire family tree.

As strange a pastime as it sounds, there are thousands of people all over the world who do exactly the same thing. A Genealogical Directory printed annually lists thousands of people around the world looking for information on ancestors, wars and events.

Each 'searcher' who registers with the directory is assigned a code number. At the back of the book, under the appropriate code, is the name and address of the searcher. Anyone with information about what any searcher is looking for simply writes a letter to that person to share or ask about information.

Cec Rowe has researched his family tree back to the 1500s. He has names, dates, occupations and addresses of his great-great-great-great-grandparents. He has a shelf full of books and lists, charts and guides. He knows when they died and why, how many children they had, how many survived and why they didn't. He knows who was a doctor, who married more than once and what names are true family names.

Rowe found a woman in New Zealand to whom he is related. His grandfather six generations back had three wives; Rowe is the descendant of one wife's child and the woman in New Zealand is a descendant of a different wife's child. Somewhere in the interwoven bloodlines the two share a thread.

But finding this out was all accidental. Rowe was looking for information on that grandfather's involvement in the Maori wars in New Zealand when he came upon the distant relation. The two have written several times and have exchanged a lot of information.

The Mormon church in Salt Lake City, Utah provides the most detailed and extensive access to historical records in the world. Anyone can write to them for information on a family name which, for a small fee, will render a long, computer-generated list of births, deaths, marriages and children's names of a specified person.

But even from there the search is time consuming and sometimes exhaustive. Anyone knowing their ancestor's place of birth or death in most towns in the U.K. can write to the local registrar for copies of the certificates. From there, further generations can be derived from the information on the documents. But costs can add up.

Surprises: This year's district flower show is bound to have them Surprises! Yes we will have some surprises at the Official Opening on Thursday, August 9, 7:15 p.m. at the Minden and District Annual Flower Show. So be there on time!

The Minden Community Centre will be decorated for the occasion and we are hoping for a great display of exhibits.

It's a great place to meet your friends, discuss the exhibits and chit chat over a friendly cup of tea, coffee or juice — with goodies too, of course.

We hope the children will participate, we need their exhibits. No membership fee is required by the Juniors this year.

Prize Lists are available at downtown shops — so snap on to one and get cracking. You can pick one up at Stedman's, I.D.A. Drug Store, Campbell's Garden Centre.

Anyone can show — don't be bashful you can become a member which is a requisite for competing for those over 16 years of age.

Exhibits must be in place by 1:00 p.m. on Thursday and judging begins at 1:30 p.m.

Come and join the fun and have a pleasant time. See you there!

Trent-Severn Waterway Report

Conditions across the Trent-Severn watershed, in terms of water levels, have had no appreciable change in the past week.

Reservoir water levels were 8 per cent above the 10-year average at 86.6 per cent of their full capacity on July 23. These levels are the highest at this time of year since 1984.

The Kawartha lakes are gradually declining from just above their full levels to within the summer operating range. Lake Simcoe is nine centimetres

Discharges in tributaries such as the Gull and Burnt River systems may be increased in the following weeks to ensure that a gradual reduction of levels on the reservoir continues.

It's written in stone

Rowe belongs to eight different genealogical societies. "It's cheaper to belong to a society than to do it yourself," he said. Belonging to a society enables a person to have access to that society's information and to other members who can share ideas and information.

The Haliburton Highlands Genealogical Group currently has 10 members. They meet regularly to discuss recent discoveries, share information and, of course, to work on the local cemetery listings. "The talking to each other is where you get the best information," said Rowe.

Rowe would like to see the group grow. Anyone interested in helping out or in researching their family tree can contact Rowe. But be warned: researching a family tree can be painstaking, detailed work. The process is interesting and the results can be either a dead end or a gossip mongers's dream!

LOST and FOUND

*If you love something, set it free.
If it comes back, it's yours.
If it doesn't, it never was.*

by Carol Moffatt

It's a story that stems from tragedy and heartache but after 29 years a broken home is about to be mended. Last week Evelyn MacKenzie got a phone call from Arizona, from the son she gave up—for his own protection—when he was nine months old.

Women have given their children up for adoption for many different reasons, but MacKenzie's reasons were the stuff many people think can only come from Hollywood.

MacKenzie, 54, now suffers from chronic obstructive lung disease and is learning to deal with her inevitable death. "I can't eat, I can't sleep, I can't remember things. I'm afraid to go to sleep in case I don't wake up before I see him," she said tearfully. Her health won't allow her to make the trip to Arizona.

MacKenzie married a dashing young man when she was 21 years old. "He treated me like a queen until I said 'I do'," she said. And then things changed.

"This old nose has been broken a few times," she said. MacKenzie endured a life she recalls with the nonchalance that only a true survivor can display. She was regularly beaten, threatened with death and psychologically terrorized.

The abuses MacKenzie endured are frightening, some are sickening and infuriating but still more are just no longer discussed. One example of the terror she endured is the day she said a gunshot sent a bullet through her beehive hairdo.

"People today don't know how lucky they are. There are so many places you can get help," said MacKenzie. The life she led was no secret but she still had nowhere to go. Her relatives were all newlyweds with kids in small apartments. Her mother had a 'change of life baby' the same time MacKenzie had her first child, so she couldn't even go home.

Debara was born in 1957 and Michael was born in 1960. MacKenzie let the Children's Aid Society take Debbie because of the abuse the child suffered, the details of which MacKenzie doesn't discuss.

When Michael was born MacKenzie told the hospital another man was the baby's father. "A name just popped into my head," she said, and an imaginary name still exists on the birth record.

"... there was no way I was going to let him think it was his child," she said. "He told me if I ever had a boy he would train him just like he was."

When Michael was nine months old MacKenzie feared for his safety so much she gave him up. And although his adoptive family moved to Arizona Michael was never very far away.

Michael's adoptive grandparents had a house on Orde Street and Michael summered in Minden for many years in his youth. He even worked for the Minden Progress, the previous name of The Times.

After Michael went away MacKenzie left her husband in Toronto and went to live with her grandparents in Port Hope. She had told the CAS to leave her file open in case her children wanted to see her and in 1973 Debbie came back to find her.

"I was so happy to see her. She wanted to see her father and I tried to warn her..." said MacKenzie, her words drifting off.

"She took off to get away from him and she doesn't want him to know where she is," said MacKenzie. "I only see her about once a year now," she said sadly.

MacKenzie finally divorced her first husband. She married again but the marriage failed after the only child from the union, a daughter, died of Cystic Fibrosis at three months of age. "We always stayed good friends," said MacKenzie of her second husband.

Evelyn married Darrell MacKenzie in 1977. "I finally realized what love was. He's a great guy," she said with a smile. The two moved back to MacKenzie's native Haliburton about five years ago and live just outside Minden.

In 1987 Evelyn signed up with ParentFind, an organization that links up adopted children and their birth parents. Because of her failing health, she was moved to the top of the list and MacKenzie says Minden's Dr. Holliday-Rhodes was instrumental in making that happen.

"He's one of the biggest factors of a lot of good things that happened in my life. He put the pressure on the search for my son," she said. In Arizona, meanwhile, Michael had signed up with the same organization.

When ParentFind called to tell her they had found her son, MacKenzie was "shaking like a leaf. I just cried," she said. She called someone to share the news and while she was talking, the line clicked, indicating another incoming call.

Evelyn MacKenzie proudly displays childhood photos of the two children she had to give up for adoption almost thirty years ago. Her daughter found her in 1973 and her son, only nine months old when he was adopted, called her from his home in Arizona just last week.

Fixing a broken home Mother and son will reunite after 29 years of being apart

A man's voice asked if she was Evelyn and her heart froze, she said. When she said 'yes', he said simply "This is Michael"

Re-telling the moment, MacKenzie breaks down and sobs. "You can't know what that's like..." she said through the tears.

Since then they have spoken several times on the phone. Michael's message through ParentFind was he didn't want to go over the past, the reasons why, he just wanted to start over. But MacKenzie said there are so many things he has to know, one of which is why his father's name is different on his birth record.

But Michael's relations with his adoptive family didn't prove overly successful. His father died of cancer in 1969 and his mother, who had given birth to a daughter shortly after his adoption, told him she hadn't wanted him and wished she had given him back.

When Parent Find located MacKenzie, Michael quickly sold his ham radio set and his CB to help buy a plane ticket to Toronto. But the money had to be used at the last minute for his wife to attend a family funeral in New Mexico.

He was supposed to arrive in early August but it now seems he won't be able to make the trip until mid-September by which time he should have the money saved. "It's driving me crazy," said MacKenzie, "I have a daughter-in-law and two granddaughters I never knew existed."

MacKenzie wants nothing more than to gather her scattered flock about her. "I want my two kids to be together with me and with Deanna," said MacKenzie, referring to her third child who lives in Peterborough.

MacKenzie said her husband is planning to raise a small American flag on the front lawn to welcome Michael when he finally saves enough money to make the trip up.

MacKenzie's happiest moment came last Friday when she spoke to her son. Clutching the baby picture she has kept all these years she said proudly, "He called me 'mum' for the first time today."

Sidewalk Sale promises fun, bargains

by Carol Moffatt

The upcoming Sidewalk Sale was the main focus of conversation at last week's BIA meeting. It was reported that the application to use the Village Green was sent to Gary Thurston and the Haliburton County Farmer's Association is organizing a farm animal exhibition for the green.

There will be hay, fences and attendants to ensure safety and a natural environment for children to see the animals. There was some discussion of the possible posting of a 'use at own risk' sign in case of any injury on the Village Green or caused by any animals.

It was confirmed that the Lions Club will provide clowns to create a carnival atmosphere and the Lions Club will put up wares tables.

The new Hyland Crest bus will be on display as will satellite dishes from Dick Hope's. It was reported the Horticultural Society was too busy with the upcoming flower show to participate in the day's events, but Dollo's IGA will be putting up a bakery and fruit stand for the day.

It was suggested K & A restaurant set up a hotdog stand in the gazebo. It was thought this would help to draw people across the bridge to where Ron Gambell is having a timber raising event for the new section of his shop.

Several inquiries for vending permission from non-merchants were entertained and accepted. "We're doing it for the people, after all," said Jerry Jordan. Chairman Lewis Stevens agreed and said outside vendors should not have to pay a fee of any sort to participate in the sale.

Autumn Davis confirmed face painting for children by the staff of CHACE place. Street music was discussed but it was decided that permission had already been given to Chessel Nesbitt to display ghetto blasters for sale and the music from them would be sufficient.

Shirley Walker informed the group of a company in Haliburton that rents banners for events like sidewalk sales, but it was decided the banners in question would be too small and would not provide the date of the sale. Jordan suggested looking into purchasing banners for each end of Main Street for future sidewalk sales.

Those in attendance agreed that everything was in place for the sale. "We just need participation now," said Jordan.

STREET LIGHTS

The new streetlights were discussed briefly. There was agreement that they were attractive and practical. Stevens suggested everyone consider putting the old lights down Peck Street and perhaps at the boat launch

Mega-fun at Rotary's Mega Bingo

Sunday, July 1, over 500 Bingo lovers made our first "Mega Bingo" of the year, a mega success, with over $5,000 in winnings. By the time you read this, "Mega Bingo" number two will also be history, and remember the third one of the year is coming up on Sunday, September 2. Attendance at regular Tuesday night bingo has now climbed to over 200 people per night and regular game winners now collect $60 instead of $50.

We would like to thank all who turned out to enjoy our Carnival night on July 25, making it a great success. Chairman Peter Bennett and his organizing committee deserve a vote of thanks for providing a lot of fun for all.

For Your Service

by Rotarian Bill Roszell

Hunter Obee is back home. He has just completed a year's visit as a Rotary exchange student in Belgium and at this point we can only assume that parents Bill and Penny are glad to have the family together again. Hunter, we will be looking forward to hearing some of the fascinating stories you have to tell us.

On August 15 our club will be sponsoring exchange student Alan Flemming for his one-year visit to Brazil. Alan will be a great ambassador for Canada and another real credit to the Minden area. All the best Alan and stay in touch.

Also in mid August, Don and Eleanor Hall's family will increase by one. They will host incoming exchange student Anette Bus-Rasmussen from Denmark for the first three months of her stay with us. Other Minden area families will then act as hosts for the rest of the year. Welcome Anette and we all hope you enjoy Minden.

Our best wishes for a speedy recovery go to Mary and Gil Scott following Mary's stroke.

See you next month!

Lightning strikes fear into boaters

Lightning has been the boater's phobia ever since man first put a raft on water.

While few people ever perish from a bolt of lightning, the dangers of this spectacular natural phenomenon increase when you're out on the water.

Here are some tips that will help you feel secure if you're ever in the path of a lightning storm while boating.

Boaters, fishermen, swimmers and water skiers should head for shore when they hear the first distant peel of thunder. Don't be lethargic about it either; thunder can rarely be heard more than 25 miles away, so if you can hear it you should seek better shelter.

To some extent you can judge the distance of a lightning strike because light travels much faster than sound. Count the seconds between the time you see the bolt of lightning and the time you hear the thunder clap. Divide the number seconds by five and you'll have a rough idea how many miles away the lightning is. For example, five seconds of elapsed time, divided by five, means the storm is about a mile away.

If you can't beat the storm to shore, stow away your fishing rods and get as low in the boat as you can. If your boat has a cabin below, send the passengers there.

When you do get to shore, stay away from lone trees—they attract lightning. Take refuge in a ditch or depression and get lower than the landscape around you. Your car is also safe if you roll up the windows because of the insulating properties of tires and glass.

KEEPING YOU INFORMED

Municipal office should relocate says BIA

before they are taken away. Several communities have asked to have the old lights for their own use.

Stevens brought up the parking on Peck Street behind the Main Street stores. It was reported that six merchants had already said no to the plan. Lewis countered that "nothing is there forever. It would help if we could take advantage of the situation for a time." It was agreed that the shop owners in question needed to be shown a drawn plan before any further negotiations can begin.

Jordan said he would like to see the county offices move to the new arena site. "It would alleviate a lot of problems and get people (who work there) out of the Main St. area," said Jordan, which would create more parking. Those in attendance agreed it was a sound idea.

PARKING

Stevens brought two letters about parking to the attention of the group. One addressed the absence of any handicapped parking spaces on Main St. but the group discussion was not in favor of designating any specific spaces as such. "Given the taxi stand problems I'm not sure how easy it would be," said Stevens. "I just don't see it. Those spaces are usually in self-contained parking lots," as opposed to in a main shopping street, said Jordan.

The new taxi stand was the topic of lengthy discussion. BIA members did not look favorably on the designated spot and discussed how it should be a pick up and drop off point as opposed to a parking space.

Pete Worrell pointed out that since Minden's cab companies are radio dispatched, there was little, if any, need for a place where a person could flag down a cab. Ron Gambell asked why the issue was currently a BIA concern when the group had not been consulted before the spot was designated by council. He then made a motion to revoke the taxi stand as a parking place which was seconded and for which the entire group was in favour.

On behalf of the Minden Baseball Association, Russ Duhaime asked for financial support for the league's year-end tournament. Three hundred and fifty children are involved in the league on 22 teams. Jordan made the motion that $300 be provided for hotdogs and hamburgers for the tournament. "It's for the kids," he said.

PETE'S PLACE

Jordan had asked Pete Worrell to attend the meeting in order to clarify that any comments reported about Pete's Place were not made in a BIA meeting. After some discussion the matter was clarified and agreed upon. "I just want it to die a slow death," said Pete.

The group discussed the idea behind a BIA group and decided the maintenance of the group was important to the community. "Something good always comes out of these things. Let's play on the good part," said Gambell.

Jordan raised the issue of previously reported BIA meetings and the recent editorial about the group. He suggested to Duhaime that The Times provide a BIA representative as well as a reporter at the meetings "so we can see two sides of it."

The group agreed the editorial knocked the BIA and did nothing to improve its reputation within the community. Several members defended the BIA and discussed the lack of attendance and participation. "I personally think a Chairman and a secretary equals bureaucracy, but I've got to go with the flow. If that's what everyone wants, that's what we'll do," said Jordan.

Jordan also emphasized that no one can make anyone attend the meetings, especially when there are so many other commitments such as service clubs and participation in sports around town.

Discussion arose about reducing the number of summer meetings. Gambell said more meetings during the winter months would make for better organization, which would mean fewer summer meetings would be necessary.

Worrell said people who operate businesses outside of Main Street don't feel like they belong in the BIA and added, "if we want to get something going in this town we've got to get the BIA together." All agreed they would encourage others to attend meetings and get involved.

Stevens informed the group that applications were being made to extend the PRIDE project down Main St. to Highway 35. He felt the next project would take considerably less time to complete due to the experience the townspeople gained during the recently-completed project. "A little bit of experience wouldn't do any harm," he said.

The final topic of discussion involved improving the corner at the Something Shop by the bridge. "The river is an important part of a town," said Stevens. "There are a lot of things people might want something done with," he added. He asked members to consider any further improvements they felt should be made to Main St. and to discuss them amongst themselves for future discussion.

The next meeting was scheduled to take place on August 27 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss any Back to School specials that may take place on Main St.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

Sun shines again on local fun day

For the fifth year in a row, the weather cooperated and the sun shone on Minden Lake's "Sun Valley", for the Association's Annual Fun Day and General Meeting. Thanks to the Traceys, Werners, Caspers and Berrys for the use of their properties.

Starting with the Ball game at 1:30, the day's events were enjoyed by over 125 members and friends, our largest crowd yet. We welcome the many new neighbours who attended this year.

Once again, the North Side Blue Jays defeated the South Side Expos on the Tracey's back lawn; but this year's game was a close one with a score of 12 to 9. Wait until next year when the South Side's younger ball players mature a year. Many a youngster gets their first time at bat and in field in Minden Lake's Annual Game.

The South Side managed to redeem themselves when they overpowered the North Side in the children's tug-of-war.

Starting with 19 teams and several elimination rounds, our Men's Horse-shoe Champions were Wes Kent and Harry Crumb, and Women's Champions of Jane Styles and Susan Sheehan.

The Watermelon Eating Contest was popular with the younger set. In the six and under category, Emily Berry was the winner with Christopher Berry as runner up. In the seven to 10 group, Gaeton Davis won and Kirstin Haden was runner up. Winner Natalie Haden and runner up Dennis Bailey completed the 11 and up event. The girls seemed to be able to out each the boys much to the surprise of the onlook-

The purple invader

An exotic intruder plant called "the purple plague" by wetlands conservationists is destroying fragile fish and wildlife habitat across the province.

And its sweeping spread is being aided by ready commercial availability to gardeners and a lack of control initiative by the provincial government.

Commonly known as "purple loosestrife" (lythrum salicaria), the perennial plant so appealing to gardeners boasts a beautiful, three-foot stem of purple blooms throughout much of the summer.

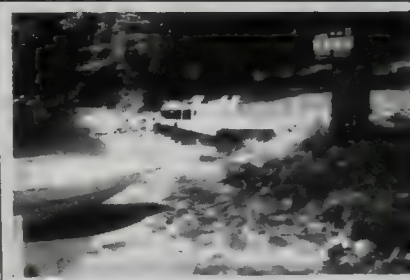

But once it spreads into fragile wetlands, it dominates available space for other species and takes over.

Kennisis Lake Cottagers serve up steaming brew

Thursday afternoon was birthday tea party. The ladies and gentlemen of the Kennisis Lake Cottage Owners Association provided the tea party and served the residents of Hyland Crest. Besides the delicious sandwiches, they brought cupcakes instead of the usual birthday cake, since it was birthday tea. They also brought a sing-along which they played. Those who had birthdays in July were Pearl Lyle, Lillian James, Marie McPhail and Isabella Gardner. On behalf of the residents, I would like to thank all who helped with the tea, Murray & Yolanda Wenger, Earla Hume and granddaughter Katie Muir and Jim Wilkinson sincerely for the lovely tea and entertainment.

Thursday at noon Terry came for me, we picked up Norma's mother Clara Austin in Haliburton on our way to Apsley and Kevin's. He is building his house. Kevin and Terry worked on the house while Clara and I sat on the deck and talked. At 4 p.m. Kevin was called into work. We went back to Terry's for supper and then Terry brought me home.

Friday afternoon the Happy Hour was entertained by Bill Payne - guitar, George Smith - violin, Eldon Deacon - guitar & banjo, Don Burch - mouth organ, Charlie Hadley - guitar, and Doris part of the time - piano. The residents of Happy Hour thank you all very much for your entertainment. They sang also. We also thank the volunteers who served, Don & Ellen Holden, Mary Guillemain, Dorothy Milne and Jankie Thomas.

Saturday, July 28 some residents went to Stanhope Fun Day. Volunteers took the residents by car, Fred & Beth Parker took Mary McKelvey & Lula Ferrill, Ira and Wanda Carter took Marion Rose and Lorne Fry. Dick Kirkwood took Ann Collison, Myrtle O'Halloran and Mary Smith. Those who went said they had a good time and that there was a big crowd there. The residents wish to thanks the volunteers who drove them and cared for them while they were there.

Sunday Chapel was taken by Reverend John Burgess and as usual it was very instructive. Alice Jones was organist for the service and we sincerely thank them both.

Last week we admitted another residents, Mrs. Irene Stamp. I believe she will be here during a vacation period.

Monday afternoon the Minden Line Dancers were here again to teach us Line Dancing. It was so warm only a few of us tried it. Dorothy Milne teaches the dancing and Ellen Holden, Molly McCathey, Adele McGoldrich and Dorothy Rowe came to dance. We also had a clown dancer, Lee Oster. The residents thank you ladies and gentlemen for coming (especially on so warm a day) sincerely.

Monday night Dorothy Hunters and Frank Le Maitre showed movies in the auditorium. The movies were "Spring Time in Holland" and "Squirrel on My Shoulder". We enjoyed them very much.

Tuesday morning the chapel service was conducted by Father Felix whom we thank sincerely. In the afternoon Doris took a bus load of residents for a trip to the tower at Dorset. We were happy to have Ruth Griffin with us today and having the nursing staff help the way they did with loading the bus. Everything ran so smoothly. We thank them sincerely. We also want to thank Muriel Harrington very much for her gift of a pan of homemade fudge. Everyone enjoyed it. It was a lovely day for a drive. Of course we couldn't pass Kawartha Dairy and we were home on schedule.

Dianna Morris was to read to us tonight, she phoned to say she was unable to do so.

Pat Kent reclaims seed spitting glory

ers. Winner of the Watermelon Seed Spitting Contest, Pat Kent, repeated her last year's decision.

The Egg Toss was an exciting event this year. After a hard-fought battle, the team of Jeffrey Vander Valk and Jason Poxon defeated Jenny Berry and Claudi Werner. The girls' egg bounced on the grass every throw and did not break until all but the two teams were eliminated, much to the dismay of the competing teams. Leonard Tracey and his sister Susan Verbeek were successful in the Adult Egg Toss.

The Paddle Boat Races seemed to be the favourite event of the day. After several heats the children's winning team was Wesley Vander Valk and Emily Berry out pedalling Clay Davis and Kristin Haden. Christopher Newton and Manon Ste. Marie won the adult event.

Most took part in the Water Relay where the children tried to fill a small pail with water by means of a cut off styrofoam cup. Each member taking his or her turn, then running back and passing the cup to the next member of the team. The squeals and laughter of the children even as young as two years of age were delightful to hear. The race was a close one but the team of Clay Davis, Gaeton Davis, Kristin Haden, Claudi Werner, Matthew Tracey and Jason Poxon, was victorious.

The Peanut Guess, Candy Guess and 50/50 Draw completed the day's events.

At 5:30 p.m. Jim Bell showed his skills at the barbecue, cooking endless numbers of hot dogs, thus starting the food parade. Three large picnic tables overflowing with culinary specialties followed by desserts of every description, made sure the group was well fed.

After dinner, prizes were awarded and a short Annual General Meeting was held to inform members of current business of the Association. President, Roy Mann outlined events of the last year and reported on Membership; F.O.C.A.; the lake water testing program; that Minden Lake is on the list for septic testing and that the boat launch has been improved by the township. No election of officers was necessary this year as term of office was changed to two years in 1989. Gord Sheehan will continue to send approximately four newsletters a year to try to keep members informed.

As night approached, the grounds were cleaned up and the happy group left for home, pleased that they were able to talk to neighbours from all sections of the lake.

"WHERE THE ACTION IS"

Rising deer populations broaden hunting regulations

Increased deer populations will allow the province to open some new deer hunting seasons and lengthen others in 1990, Natural Resources Minister Lyn McLeod announced.

Five years of research are yielding detailed information on deer feeding habits, migration patterns and mortality, in addition to a method for accurately measuring the natural food supply.

"As a result, our wildlife managers are using these data to establish much more reliable population targets in deer management areas", McLeod said. "Ontario's deer population has tripled since the ministry established its selective harvest program 10 years ago."

The ministry's management plan is to keep the deer population just below the maximum capacity of the winter habitat to support them throughout most of the deer range. This sustains the health of the animals and avoids dramatic changes in deer numbers and the problems association with overpopulation, such as vegetation damage and weakened animals. Methods for achieving this include regulating sport hunting, managing deer habitat, controlling poaching and managing predators.

Last year deer numbers were high across the province and they remain high again this year. Although winter came early this year, with cold temperatures and deep snow as early as November in much of central Ontario, an early thaw and milder late winter conditions were favourable for the deer population.

For the 1990 deer hunting season, new muzzle-loading gun seasons have been added in wildlife management units 8 and 32, in addition to a new bow season in unit 47. Unit 8 has an earlier gun season this year. The seasons have been extended to five days in unit 76, 77, 78A, 78B, 81, 90 and 92.

The 1990-91 Hunting Regulations Summary outlines hunting seasons for all areas of the province. It can be obtained from any district office or from the Public Information Centre, Room 1640, Whitney Block, Toronto, M7A 1W3 or by 99 Wellesley St. W., calling (416) 965-4251.

TOWNSHIP OF STANHOPE

NOTES TO THE CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1989

1. Accounting Policies

The consolidated financial statements of the Corporation of the Township of Stanhope are the representation of management prepared in accordance with accounting policies prescribed for Ontario municipalities by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs. Since precise determination of many assets and liabilities is dependent upon future events, the preparation of periodic financial statements necessarily involves the use of estimates and approximations. These have been made using careful judgments.

(a) (i) Basis of Consolidation

These consolidated financial statements reflect the assets, liabilities, sources of financing and expenditures of the revenue fund, capital fund, reserve funds and reserves and include the activities of all committees of Council and the following boards, municipal enterprises and utilities which are under the control of Council:

Stanhope Recreation Committee
Maple Lake and Carnarvon Cemeteries

All interfund assets and liabilities and sources of financing and expenditures have been eliminated with the exception of loans or advances between reserve funds and any other funds of the municipality and the resulting interest income and expenditures.

(ii) Non-Consolidated Entities

There are no non-consolidated entities.

(iii) Accounting for County and School Board Transactions

The taxation, other revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities with respect to the operations of the school boards, and the County of Haliburton are not reflected in the municipal fund balances of these financial statements. Overlevies (underlevies) are reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" as "other current liabilities" ("other current assets").

(iv) Trust funds and their related operations administered by the municipality are not consolidated, but are reported separately on the "Trust Funds Statement of Continuity and Balance Sheet".

(b) Basis of Accounting

(i) Sources of financing and expenditures are reported on the accrual basis of accounting with the exception of principal and interest charges on long term liabilities which are charged against operations in the periods in which they are paid.

(b) Basis of Accounting

(ii) The accrual basis of accounting recognizes revenues as they become available and measurable; expenditures are recognized as they are incurred and measurable as a result of receipt of goods or services and the creation of a legal obligation to pay.

(iii) Fixed Assets

The historical cost and accumulated depreciation for fixed assets are not recorded for municipal purposes. Fixed assets are reported as an expenditure on the Consolidated Statement of Operations in the year of acquisition.

(iv) Capital Outlay To Be Recovered In Future Years

"Capital outlay to be recovered in future years", which represents the outstanding principal portion of unmatured long term liabilities for municipal expenditures or capital funds transferred to other organizations, is reported on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".

2. Operations of School Boards and the County of Haliburton

Further to note 1(a) (iii), the taxation, other revenues, expenditures and overlevies (underlevies) of the school boards and the County of Haliburton are comprised of the following:

	School Boards $	County $
Taxation and user charges	849,857	139,998
Amounts received or receivable	849,857	139,998
Requisitions	848,129	139,590
Overlevies for the year	1,728	408
Underlevies at the beginning of the year	(1,788)	(299)
Overlevies (underlevies) at the end of the year	(60)	109

The revenues and expenditures are not reflected in the "Consolidated Statement of Operations". The net overlevies at the end of the year are reported as "other current liabilities on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet".

3. Trust Funds

Trust funds administered by the municipality amounting to $160,095 (1988 $158,194) have not been included in the "Consolidated Balance Sheet" nor have their operations been included in the "Consolidated Statement of Operations".

The above data has been extracted from the audited 1989 Consolidated Financial Report of the Township. Copies of the 1989 Consolidated Financial Report and the Auditor's Report thereon, are available at the Township Offices to any resident who wishes to review or analyze the financial operations of the Township in greater detail.

IN MEMORIAM

SHAW - In loving memory of our Mother Jennie who passed away August 7, 1974 and our father Joseph on March 29, 1971.

Your lives were unselfish,
For others you lived.
Not to receive but Always to give.

Lovingly remembered by daughters Pearl, Shirley & families.

BURCHELL - In loving memory of Muriel (May 8, 1987), and Sydney (August 11, 1989).

They left us quietly,
Their thoughts unknown,
But left us a memory
We are proud to own;
So treasure them Lord,
In your garden of rest;
For when on earth,
They were two of the best.

Greatly missed by their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.
